Prior to that, she spent 15 years within Rhodia and Solvay, where she held a variety of HR leadership roles in learning & development, career management, industrial relations and project management, before becoming HR Director for several international functions and businesses. She then joined Winoa as Group CHRO, with additional responsibility for Safety and Communication, before moving to Getlink, a listed company in the SBF120 index.

Throughout her career, Laetitia has held leadership roles in France, in Belgium and in the United Kingdom, bringing a strong international perspective to strategic HR leadership. In her various positions within complex, matrix-based and multicultural organisations, she has consistently led major transformation programmes, shaped high-impact HR strategies, and championed the development of leadership capabilities within diverse global environments.
